

Polder Sofa

Hella Jongerius, 2005

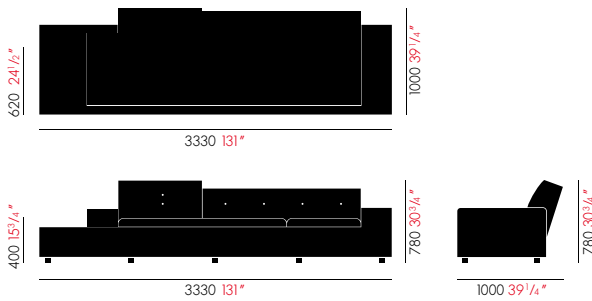

Right-hand armrest

In Holland Polder refers to the artificial land reclaimed from the sea by means of dykes and drainage canals. The body of the Polder Sofa is just as low-lying, just as flat, and has just as much emphasis on the horizontal. Hella Jongerius chose for it five carefully selected combinations of colors and fabric qualities, accentuating them with high-tech threads and large buttons made of natural materials.

Material: wooden frame with belt upholstery, backrest cushions: polyurethane chips and microfibers, textured surface and seat cushion: polyurethane foam and polyester wool, armrest with sand weights, buttons made of natural materials.

IMPORTANT: The Polder sofa is available in One Piece or Two Pieces for easier transportation (25" wide can be taken off). For each order please specify one or two pieces with part numbers below.
